4. In late June, a number of Soviet officers with families daily left the Priort railroad station and went on leave. The officers, who drank quite a lot in the restaurant at the station, talked repeatedly about an 8-week leave in the USSR, and stated that they would return without dependents. 25X1

[REDACTED] Comment. In view of the information in paragraph 4 of the present report, there is reason to believe that the pay was not actually reduced but kept back in order to prevent the returning Soviet families from excessive buying in German shops. It could not be determined whether all Soviet families were to return to the USSR, or whether the pertinent military personnel had completed their term of service in East Germany. No other indications of a retransfer of Soviet families are available. 25X1
